

UF Connections in the United Kingdom

The United Kingdom is situated in Western Europe. Its capital city is London. The US Department of State estimates its population at 64,430,428. Information about travelling to the UK is on the Department of State website. The Center for Disease Control and Prevention also has useful information.

The University of Florida (UF) has a wide array of collaborations with the United Kingdom (UK). These include study abroad and exchange programs, internships, and research projects with a variety of institutions and partners. The UK is a consistently popular destination and point of interest for UF students and faculty alike, and offers a diverse range of opportunities to those interested.

Visiting Students, Scholars & Researchers

The table below provides data on the number of students, scholars, and researchers from the United Kingdom who came to work or study at UF during the 2014-2015 academic year.

UF Students in the United Kingdom

During the Fall 2014–Summer 2015 academic year, 184 UF students studied in the United Kingdom. Below are all of the reciprocal agreements UF has in the UK. Reciprocal agreements are the foundation for the exchange programs in which so many UF students are involved. In an exchange program, students pay UF tuition and are assigned UF course equivalencies for the work they do abroad. Reciprocal agreements provide for the equal exchange of students between the University of Florida and an internationally accredited institution. Agreements are typically valid for three years initially and can be renewed through a signed addendum, if both parties agree.

Highlights

- Getting to Know the European Union: Peace + Sustainability – Our Shared Future

This is a two-year grant program awarded to the Center for European Studies by the European Union (EU) in an effort to collaboratively promote the efforts of the EU, specifically related to peacekeeping and sustainability. As part of this program, UF hosts a series of talks given by faculty experts and special guests on a variety of European issues. For example, the March 2016 series focused on Northern Ireland and included speakers from UF, other US universities, and Northern Ireland.
